American Guild of Organists - Harrisburg Chapter

Program News

A Message From the Dean

Happy Holidays! I trust everyone will plan to enjoy a joyful, but peaceful, holiday season. Years ago, I made a vow that my choirs will enjoy that also. So, I decided to postpone singing Bach's Magnificat, preferring to allow professional choirs that experience. And I resolved to choose quality music that I know my choir AND the congregation will enjoy. Christmas is not the best time to educate and edify. Begin the new year refreshed, and with the vitality that our profession mandates!

Now for our program news:

The January 7 Recital at York Springs Lutheran Is Cancelled.

Rhonda Sider Edgington's e-mail began; "I have good news and bad news" The good news is that the Edgington's are expecting their first child in early February. (Early congratulations to grandparents Ron and Beth Sider!) A transatlantic flight in January is not recommended for Rhonda.

We've turned the bad news into good news! Harrisburg Chapter will join Lancaster and York at the JANUARY JUMPSTART program sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter. This program features presentations on a vast range of topics valuable to all of us in our professional efforts. Our own Shelly Moorman-Stahlman is presenting a session on organ repertoire. Staff of the Free Library of Philadelphia—keepers of the world-famous Fleisher Collection—is presenting a session on caring for music scores. Other topics include AGO exams, computer music-writing programs and improvisation. More information can be found on page 2 of The Bombarde.

Please call 717-731-9290 or e-mail <ellenhunt@comcast.net> me by December 10 if you are interested. We could car pool from Harrisburg, or we might be able to join the Lancaster/York chapters which have hired a bus ($20/person).

A Wonderful Holiday Season to All!

Scholarship Student Recital Outstanding

Hearty applause filled the sanctuary of the Mechanicsburg Presbyterian Church on Sunday, November 19th. About 75 people attended to support and be inspired by a performance by Harrisburg Chapter AGO scholarship recipients. All six students exhibited poise, technical ability, and musical sensibility.

Jonathan Kadar-Kallen opened the program with the Toccata (Symphony V) by Widor. Rachel Eby played J.S. Bach's little Prelude and Fugue in A minor. Jonathan and Rachel were students of Josephine Freund.

Joseph Gribb played a prelude on Melita by Alfred Fedak, and Praise to the Lord, the Almighty, arranged by John Eggert. Joseph is a student of Suzanne Klinedinst.

Cameron Wentz studies with Richard Frey. He played Psalm XIX of Marcello.

Charles Grove and Chelsea Barton are students of Dr. Shelly Moorman-Stahlman. Charles played J. S. Bach's little Prelude and Fugue in C Major, and Chelsea performed Allegro Maestoso (Sonata II) by Mendelssohn, Allegro (Sonata in E flat Major) by J. S. Bach, and Widor's Toccata (Symphony V).

Players and audience enjoyed refreshments prepared by Judy Schrack and a cadre of excellent cookie bakers! The next student recital is scheduled for Sunday, April 22 at St. Paul Lutheran Church, New Cumberland.

Introducing William Curry, M.D., M.S.

by Mary Jane Nelson

Our mini-bio for December highlights a faculty member at the College of Medicine at the Milton Hershey Medical Center, but his love for organ music has remained an important part of his life.

Bill Curry has enjoyed the organ since early in high school. He grew up in DuBois, Pennsylvania, and studied organ with the late Mae Minns, a classical organist and pianist who also played in local theaters during the era of silent film. Thirty-three years ago in 1973, Bill attended the very first Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Arts in organ performance, and he continues to perform today in addition to his medical endeavors.

His life has taken him through medical school, medical practice in the U.S. Air Force, private practice as a family physician, and now his present position at the Medical Center. He served as organist and choir director at the Grace Methodist Church in Hummelstown while a medical student and at the First United Methodist Church in Niceville, Florida, while completing his residency in family medicine. He served as a substitute organist during his active duty Air Force years in Florida and Delaware, and he remains willing to substitute at the console of the First United Methodist Church in Hershey when his call responsibilities allow.

Bill is married to his medical school classmate -- Gwendolyn Curry, M.D., and they have two children, both musical, and each a frequent partner in presenting music with their dad. His son, Will, is a viola performance major at Northwestern University, while daughter, Betsy, is in her second year at Hershey High School.

Bill has performed recitals both alone and with others in Florida, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Most recently, he teamed with fellow organists Shawn Gingrich, Helen Anthony and Dennis Gingrich for a keyboard extravaganza at the First Methodist Church, Hershey, in May 2006. This concert was a combination of piano/organ duets, piano quartets, piano arrangements for four and eight hands, and a composition for six hands at one piano and two performers at the organ. He has not yet decided who had more fun—the audience or the performers.

Our Chapter members welcome you, Bill, and hope you will find challenging as well as fun-loving activities as a participant in our future program of events.

Ron Sider's Ten Commandments (Suggestions?)
for Organists and Choir Directors

Choir Directors:

1. Always be recruiting
2. Compliment the choir whenever possible
3. Stress "Music as Ministry"
4. In rehearsal, get away from the piano occasionally
5. Communicate with your pastor and remember, anything you say about him or her will get back to him or her

Organists:

6. Play hymns at a speed so that the congregation can sing
7. Articulate (especially at phrases) and play the text

Both:

8. Listen and learn – hear others, attend AGO events
9. Get organized
10. Deal with change

This "modern" tracker built by the now defunct Moller company was installed in Trinity Lutheran Church's Chapel in 1990. It is reportedly from an earlier time when the company built it as a display instrument for a convention in the late 1970s. It was also reported that this is the only example of a modern-built tracker organ by the Moller company who originally started building organs when tracker action was the norm.

Hello from Baltimore!

AGO III Regional Venues

by James Houston

As Chairperson of the Logistics Committee for the 2007 Region III Convention, I encourage everyone in the region to attend and if you don't live in this region, come anyway! Get plenty of rest beforehand because it's going to be a busy week.

Baltimore has a rich past and a very vibrant present. Known as "Charm City" it has it's own personality and is home to many interesting and off-beat people and places.

After early registration at the Marriot Inner Harbor Hotel, we are offering an Organ Crawl. This will take place in the Midtown section of town--an area developed above North Avenue in the 1880-90's. Included will be the homes of three collectors of musical instruments and other curiosities. Brian Jensen's 2/8 Wurlitzer Theatre Organ and Schiller-Welte reproducing piano, Bruce Brewer's 1850 Henry Erben, 1876 Hook & Hastings, and 1890 Vocalian organs, and Durwood Center's new music room "Orchestrion Hall" housing a M. Welte Orchestrion (a roll-playing "orchestra") and a Dutch Hooghuyts Dance Organ and more. All of this in the space of less than one block! (You may set your watch by Durwood's Hamilton Tower Clock as you pass by his house).

The tour continues to Lovely Lane United Methodist Church--the "Mother Church" of American Methodism. This Stanford White building contains a magnificent restored ceiling--pictured on your color brochure and newly rebuilt Roosevelt-Austin-Storey organ, as well as a Chapel (formerly used by Goucher College which was originally located next door) with it's charming Roosevelt organ and a Museum of Methodism. At 3:30 Henry Lowe will demonstrate the new Murphy organ at St. Mark's Lutheran Church. This 1897 Romanesque building has a totally intact Tiffany interior including frescoes, precious stones, and windows.

After time on your own we will assemble at the Basilica of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, formerly known as the Baltimore Cathedral. This is a National Historic Landmark. The Benjamin Latrobe building has just received a $30 million restoration to it's 1820 state. The importance of this building cannot be overemphasized. It is the first Cathedral in the USA. The original organ by Thomas Hall was the largest in the country and contained North America's first 32' stop. The old case is still in use housing a Roosevelt-Schantz-Andover organ. Every American Catholic used the Baltimore Catechism at their Confirmation. The Second Plenary Council took place here in 1884. Haydn's "Creation" and Mozart's "Requiem" probably had their New World premieres here. You will hear two of our premieres that night--a new hymn and a new chorale prelude.

Tuesday morning will be a service at Old Otterbein Church. This is the oldest church edifice in Baltimore, built in 1785 with ballast bricks from ships in the nearby harbor. It is the mother church of the former United Brethren in Christ denomination. On this site Lovely Lane Methodist Congregation was organized, and it is the only place remaining in Baltimore where Rev. Francis Asbury preached. It houses a lovely 14-stop Henry Niemann organ from 1897.

Then we go on to Mt. Calvary Episcopal Church for a recital on the first large organ in the US to be built on historical principals--the famous C.B. Fisk (Andover-Flentrop) of 2 manuals 36 stops--in a case after Amien Cathedral. Following this is a recital on the new Casavant-Storey organ at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church. This church is located in the Ten Hills section. Across the street is Hunting Ridge Presbyterian church where we will have some workshops. John Weaver's father was the minister of this church, and John designed the Moller organ there when he was young.

After dinner on your own, we will bus to Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church in the Bolton Hill area of the city. This recently restored church and magnificent 1930 4-manual E.M. Skinner organ will be the site for the Hymn Festival. Virgil Fox was organist at this church before going to Riverside. (Present organist John Walker was at Riverside before coming to Brown!) Other organists include Richard Ross and Eugene Belt. Two of the Tiffany windows are the largest ever made by that firm.

Please stay tuned for next month's information. As always, complete information is available at <www.baltimoreago.org>.
